Biblical Seductions, Part Three: Judah & Tamar Sandra E Rapoport
Biblical Seductions, Part Three: Judah & Tamar retells the provocative biblical story of Tamar’s seduction of her father-in-law Judah. A beautiful 18-year-old Canaanite girl named Tamar is sexually abused by her first husband, who dies mysteriously. In ancient times, if a woman is widowed without a child, the brother of her dead husband is expected to impregnate her in his brother's name. So Tamar is immediately wed to her brother-in-law, who also abuses her, refuses to do his duty to get her with child, and who meets the same fate as his older brother. Tamar is now twice widowed, is still childless, and is shunned as a "killer wife." She also is prevented by ancient law from marrying anyone other than the nearest male relative of her first deceased husband. Yet a woman without husband or child in that long-ago society was unprotected and unwanted. So Tamar waits in hope for a husband. Two years pass and Tamar is still an outcast. What to do? A desperate Tamar takes matters into her own hands, and puts in motion an audacious plan. She disguises herself as a harlot and waits at the side of the road to intercept her father-in-law, Judah. Will he recognize her? Will Tamar achieve her aim and become pregnant? Read how Tamar is accused and condemned as an adulteress, and is dragged to the town square to be burned at the stake. How does this resourceful young woman escape a martyr's death, to become the mother of a line of kings? Biblical Seductions, Part Three: Judah & Tamar is the thrilling and exciting tale of Tamar's bravery and triumph.
