The Gettysburg Chronicle: Volume VI: Unholy War (Volume 6) Matthew W. Bartlett
It would be here where the 26th North Carolina would obtain the worst casualties in the battle. It would be here where the 151st Pennsylvania would hold the grounds of the Seminary. It would be here where the intellectual genius of the Confederacy would be tested. It would be here where a commander would lose his corps. It would be here where the Iron Brigade would fall. In Bartlett's six installment of the Gettysburg Chronicle, the armies of the Union would fight for the high ground on the campus of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary. Here the Confederacy would use their overwhelming numbers to bring them to their knees. At this point on the first day of combat, the fate of the Union would be held in the balance. If they retreat, the town belongs to the Confederacy. If they hold, they will be destroyed. It all comes down to this.
