"Make me like you," I whispered.

Katherine is trapped, living the lonely existence as the wife of a cold and unforgiving man. A knock sounds on her door one winter night, and the creature she invites inside is far from human.

Malcolm offers her the chance to leave her mortal life behind to travel through the world and the centuries, fueled by the power of the werebear. What choice will she make?

WARNING: This 6,600+ word story contains graphic language and wild shifter pleasure including the whole pack with M/F, F/F/M, and F/F/F combinations. Intended for MATURE AUDIENCES 18+ only!

EXCERPT: The snow swirled outside our small cabin and pushed its way in through the cracks around the door. I sat by the fire, squinting in the dim light as I tried to mend a torn shirt. My husband was down in the meeting hall with the other men, making plans for a hunting party to try to bring down some large game, and I relished the silence and solitude of the house. Imagine my shock when my door opened and a handsome, dark haired man entered.

I knew every face in the village, and I had never seen his before. His eyes burned with a hidden fire as he crossed the threshold, shutting the door and blocking out the storm behind him. “Who are you?” I asked, my voice shaking as thoughts of robbers and savages filled my head.

The man said nothing, and continued to stare at me with those burning eyes. I found myself drawn into them and the cabin and the whirling snow and thoughts of what my husband would do if he came back and saw me with a strange man all fell away. . .

All characters are over 18 and fictional
